

In Search of Daybreak

"It's awfully dark for a summer morning.”

This thought crosses the mind of the residents of Yambio, a town known for its magnificent sunrise. Not long after, a panic begins to sweep the town as the people realize… the sun did not rise today.

This same morning, a wicked darkness began to consume the land outside the town. Even those the keenest of eyes and strongest of magics have not been able to pierce its veil. Those who have ventured into it have yet to return.

The panic swells into pandemonium as new dire news spreads: Magi Niran, the head of Yambio, is dead! With his death have gone the means of contacting with other Magi, powerful mages who govern the realm.

A week has passed since Nightfall, with Yambio's residents seemingly breathing despair instead of oxygen. This is despite the best efforts of interim Magi Soloman, the late Magi Niran's husband. Though, grief has somehow evaded him, and today you may have learned why.

You have received direct and immediate summons to Yambio's Spire by Magi Soloman. He believes he's discovered a way to suppress the darkness, and implies in his letter that you may be the key.

The town urgently requires the help of another Magi, and the closest is Magi Eritrea of Nzara, normally a day's walk from Yambio. It seems like he may ask you to take on this quest for the sake of your people.

Will you venture into the darkness?

Landscape painting by Cambo Creation